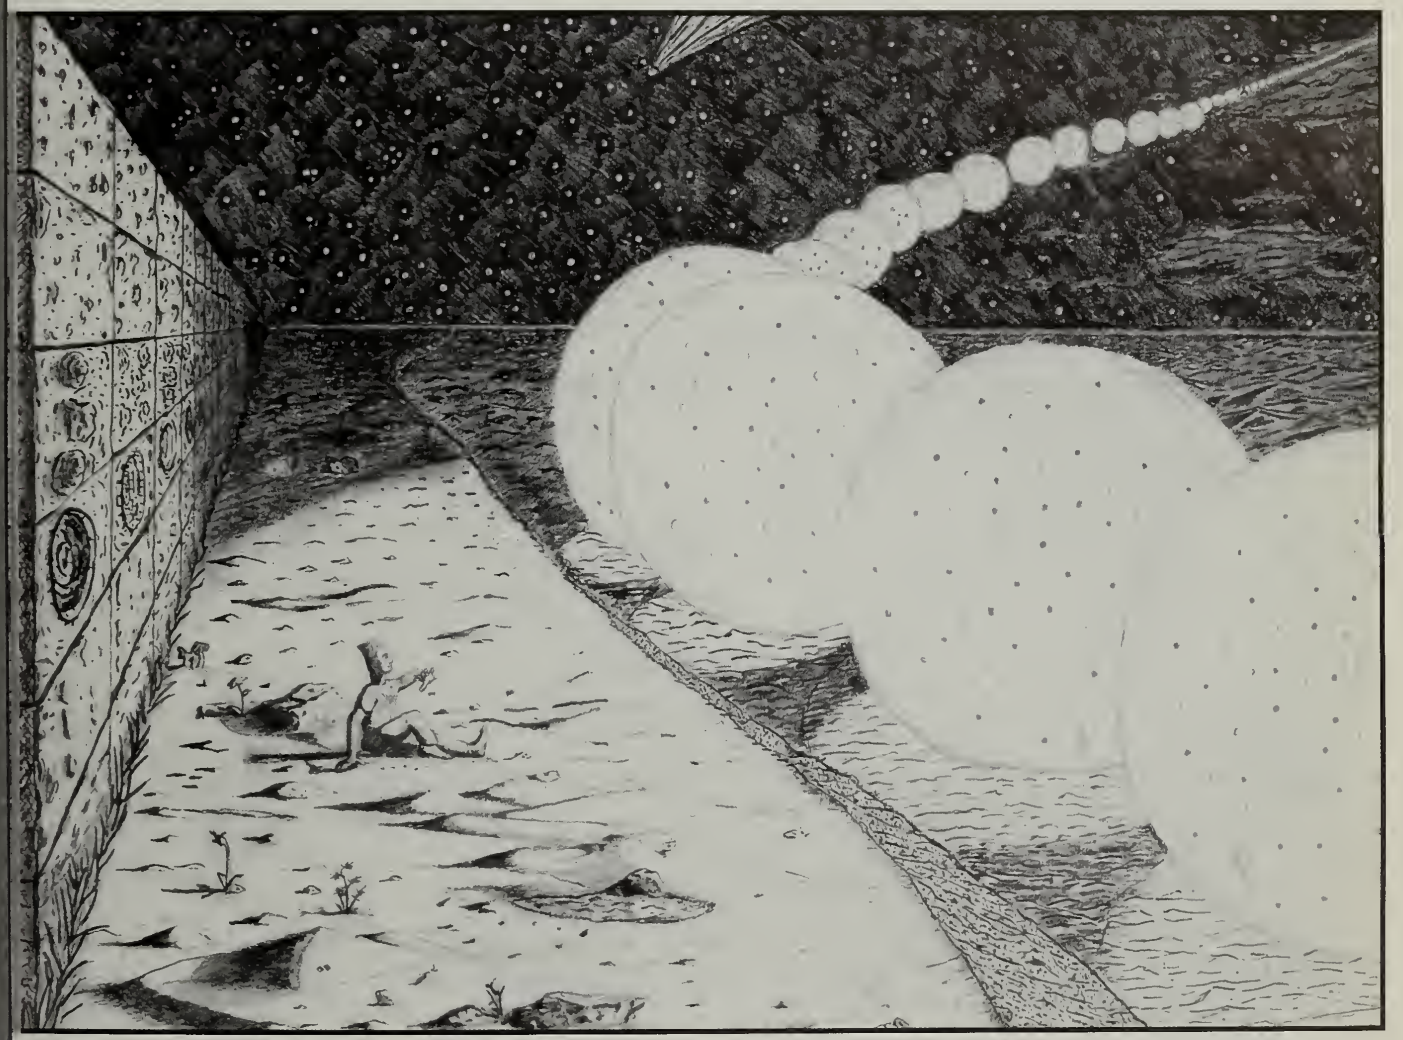
CARVER HIGH SCHOOL
CLASS OF 2001

"I know where I have been, I don't know always where I am,
But I know nothing in my future is for certain.
can only hope, that I may accept the Wisdom that can show me the way.



"Wisdom, begins in Wonder."
-Socrates

The Renaissance of Spring

With ivory pure petals,
I bloomed every year,
bright with the Springtime,
like the dandelion sun.
And from golden petals outstretched,
tips of trees touched torridity,
and warmth washed over roof tops,
to the new births below.
Seeds sprouted new lives,
in emerald blankets surrounding,
and with greenly leaves bounding,
I longed to Spring too.
For when four seasons are over
I blossom the same,
next to tedious ivories,
all in a row.
Every hour I desire
a new essence of Spring
and dream that (outside garden walls)
in lush lime leaves I'd lie.
And so one determined day, defiant, I stretched my petals above
to skies of new heights.
I felt wind gusts grabbing grains until my wintry seeds took flight, and the sweet breeze of my fate
carried me amongst heavenly haven.
Floating amongst shining sapphire skies,
gazing down at gray shadowy gardens,
I felt no jealousy of serenity soil for I'd bloom individuality the next year.
And where ever Mother Earth lands my fate
I shall not be lonely,
for wildflowers grow,
wherever destiny descends.
And anticipating the fireflies of summer I'm satisfied to know the real renaissance of Spring,
and to have truly lived the most beautiful of seasons.

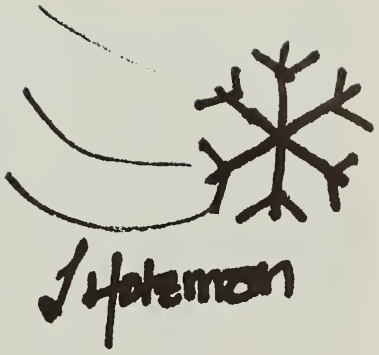
Autumn's Last Leaf



As early as the morning dew
Stepping outside
To a season brand new.
With cool, crisp fall-like air
We bundle up in our pea coats
Spin around, and then stare
Gold, red, orange, and brown
Gathered up in our heads and hands
We drop spirit-filled leaves to the ground.
Looking up to the sky
Wishing this all would stay forever
The Halloween fog gracefully streams by.
With your hands on your waist
Your mother's pumpkin pie
You can just barely taste
While standing all alone
A thought of winter
You'd rather keep unknown.
You inhale that one autumn's breath
Before it's too late
Before winter greets fall with its death.

Eric fashioned a new pair of socks almost every day, while Keri enjoyed pavement surfing. Everyone worked hard all season and had fun. Donna and Jeff made enormous improvements in their times from last year. Both teams ended their seasons at the EMASS meet where no one stayed dry or warm. It was a perfect day for puddle jumping.

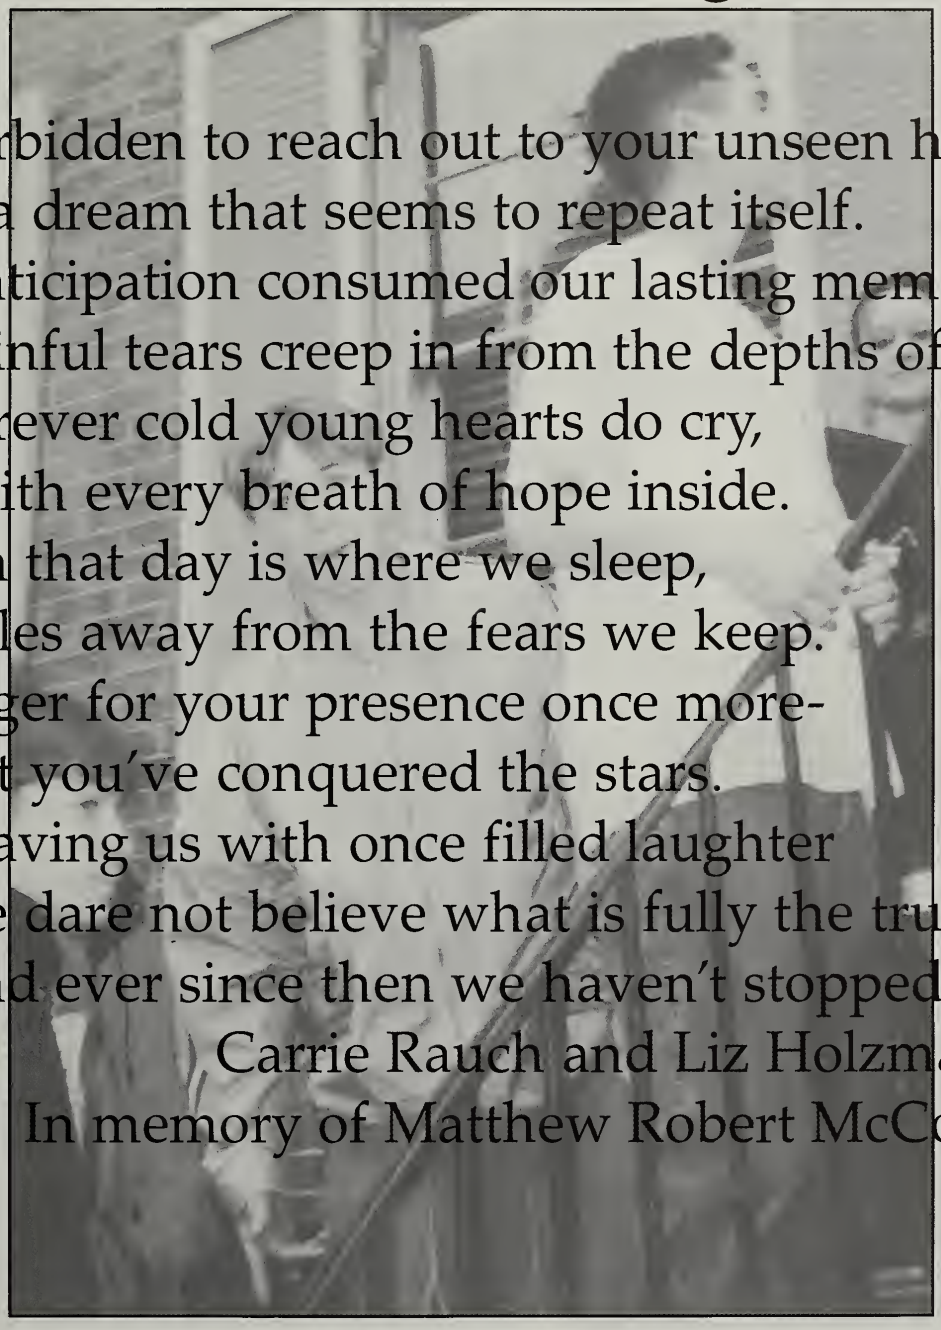
Loved and Never Forgotten...



Forbidden to reach out to your unseen hand
Is a dream that seems to repeat itself.
Anticipation consumed our lasting memories
Painful tears creep in from the depths of sorrow.
Forever cold young hearts do cry,
With every breath of hope inside.
On that day is where we sleep,
Miles away from the fears we keep.
Eager for your presence once more-
But you've conquered the stars.
Leaving us with once filled laughter
We dare not believe what is fully the truth
And ever since then we haven't stopped falling.

Sarah Mitchell

When it was finally decided that you would need a little help entering this world, Jan. 3 was set off as the day of your grand arrival. To Mom and me, the wait was well worth it. Now that moment was over eighteen years ago! How is it possible that the time waiting for your arrival went so slowly, and the time since you've been in our lives so very quickly? You went from Shirley Dimples, (you did look like Shirley Temple), to the "little boss," to Marilyn Montree in the Odyssey Competition, to a sixth grader in my class, to the young, beautiful woman you are now.

When parents have a chld, they set in their minds certain "long term" hopes as to how their children will turn out. Some, ultimately are disappointed. We are not. We wanted a daughter who would be a leader, a "thinker"; someone confident and independent. One who would seek higher aspirations and goals in her life and actively pursue them. A daughter who would be kind, compassionate, full of charm, grace and wit. A daughter of moral integrity and virtue. In you, Sarah, we got all that and more.

Soon, graduation will come and go, and you'll be off pursuing those higher academic goals, as well as all the others which come with adulthood. You'll leave our "homestead," but never our hearts! Good luck, Sweetheart! We will always love you. You are destined for greatness in this world, and when you achieve it, Mom and I will simply smile and say, "We knew that would happen!"

Love, Mom and Dad

Elizabeth Holzman

"Your travels have only just begun!" Congratulations from Mom, Dad, Annie, Jimmy, and Joe

Love, Mum XOXO
You are great! Nana is watching over you always (smiling).

Sandy Eckhardt

Now you are the voice
Lead, not follow
Believe, not doubt
Create, not destroy
You are a force for good
Defy odds
Set a new standard. Step up!
"Make your dreams come true."
Congratulations!
We love you,
Mom, Dad, and Nicole

Jessica Yung

Love, Dad and Mom

Jacqui Babcock

It seems like only yesterday the sparkle in your eyes first stole our hearts. Words can't say how proud we are of you. The kind, caring, considerate, mature young lady you've become. Believe in yourself as we always have. A great future lies ahead. We'll always be here for you. All our love forever, Mom, Dad, & Nicole

Nicole Kemmett

It seems like yesterday that you entered my life. You have brought so much love, so many smiles, and a heart full of happiness to fill a lifetime. I watched you grow from a sweet little angel who loved to play school and dress up. All of our little picnics we used to take, and our trips to the playground when we swang on ther swingset so high. All the fun and laughs we have had together stay in my heart. I have loved and cherished all the years, our long talks we still have together, and hopefully always will.

I can't believe how much you have grown into a beautiful young woman, although you will still be my little punky. I am so proud of you, and the sun has always shone since the day you came into my life.

I love you so much, Nicole, and I wish you all the love and luck in this world that it has to offer you.

Love, Mom!

Sara-Jane McShane

Tizzy-Lish,

It's been a minute and a million years since I placed that apple around your neck that said Sara-Jane McShane...Mrs.Ross, and put you on that big yellow bus. Since then-there have been countless influences on your life-Caring teachers, special friends, times of trial and of joy, memories have been made made, lessons learned. You've grown up, Sweet Stuff, into a kind, beautiful, strong woman... Someone who has morals and values and follows her heart. Your faithfulness to God, family, and friends shines in your life. Is there anyway to tell you how proud we are? No, not in words, but I believe your heart does know. You are a smile to our souls, a song to our spirits. We know we are truly blessed. So, Princess, on this day, we want to say to you- we know we've given you roots, now it's time to give you wings. To fly to wherever the future leads you. My daughter, my friend, follow where He leads, know how deeply you are loved, know you're never alone. Remember, Home is where the heart is, so put on your ruby slippers, baby, and follow your dreams.

B&B F&E- Mom and Dad

You march to a different drummer.

Thank you for sharing the music.
Love, Mom & Dad

High school is over; we're done, finally through
Now it's time to off and find new things to do
As the seasons progress, we too will change
And I realize, at first, that things will be strange
But as autumn has always come again
We can relive, remember, or visit a friend
You can look back and laugh, or dry a tear
For the bad times, forgiven, that you've left here
Just don't let this time regretfully end
We must try to let go, as new seasons begin.
